

THE TREASURE HOUSE

Long long ago in the lands of Egypt there lived a tribe known as the Children of Israel. Qarun or Korah was a man of the Children of Israel during the days of the Prophet Musa عليه السلام.

But he left his people and became a trusted minister of Firawn or Pharaoh, who was a tyrant king.

Qarun became so rich that the keys of his treasure were too heavy even for several strong men to carry.

Instead of being grateful to Allah, he chose to behave as if he was much better than others and to treat them cruelly.

His people told him how wrong this was and asked him to spend on charity and good works from the wealth which Allah had given him.

But he went on as before, arguing that the wealth which he had was due to his own knowledge and cleverness. When he showed off the glitter of his great wealth, those who loved the worldly life said, "We wish we could be rich like Qarun too! Surely he is a man of great good fortune."

But those who had been given true knowledge said, "Alas for you! The reward of Allah in the Hereafter is better for him who believes and does good works, and none shall receive it except those who have borne all ills without complaint."

The Prophet Musa عليه السلام cursed Qarun (Korah) so that Allah made the earth swallow him up along with his treasure house.

Seeing this terrible end of Qarun, those who on the day before had longed to be like him, began to say: "Behold! Allah gives much to whom He wills and little to whom He pleases."

This punishment of Qarun or Korah is a great reminder to believers to be pleased with Allah and thank Him whether they be rich or poor.
